Holiday businesses take a break to enjoy awards

The best of the region's visitor economy businesses were celebrating last night at the South West Tourism Excellence Awards, held amid a stunning light show in Exeter Cathedral

BUSINESSES devoted to creating special times enjoyed their own occasion in the spotlight last night at a record-breaking South West Tourism Excellence Awards.

The gathering in Exeter Cathedral - itself one of the region's leading attractions - saw 107 awards presented after judges pored over a record 773 entries from the Isles of Scilly to Gloucestershire.

The audience was treated to a Haka from the children of Ilsington CofE Primary School near Bovey Tracey in Devon. The rugby theme continued with a conversation on 'winning' from Kai Horstmann and Greg Holmes, Exeter Chiefs players and former internationals.

An outstanding contribution award went to Martin Cox, director of West Dorset Leisure Holidays, in recognition of his decades of support and innovation for the holiday park sector, Dorset and South West.

Jeremy Mitchell, the marketing and communications director, of St Austell Brewery - headline sponsor of this year's awards - said: "There are so many businesses and individuals in our region that deserve to be recognised for their outstanding contribution and world-class hospitality."

"We'd like to congratulate those who were awarded for their best practice, hard work and excellent service. It was a fantastic night of celebration and all of the winners should feel extremely proud of all that they continue to achieve."

The awards organiser, Robin Barker of Services for Tourism, said: "I never cease to be amazed by the innovation, dedication and imagination of our tourism businesses - not to mention their sheer hard work."

"It's humbling to be part of this and I'd like to add my congratulations to all the winners."

All entrants underwent a rigorous short-listing process with 559 visited by a team of 50 mystery shoppers. Entry was free, and all entrants received feedback, valued by entrants as a top reason for taking part. Top performers in matching categories will now go on to the VisitEngland Awards, with the potential to become national winners.
